Visit to the Colden Valley, above Hebden Bridge

Saturday 9 June 2007

At the time of writing, some places are still available for this day of walks to see traditional buildings in this green valley. Distances between buildings are not excessive, and minor roads are never far away. Meet at 10.15am (see directions below). The programme for the day has changed slightly since the last Newsheet but is likely to include:

- Highgate Farm shop. Morning coffee can be purchased (the award-winning May's shop).
- Broadstone Farm, laithe house (1811). See the unusual internal transverse stone arch supporting the roof of the barn, again a feature of this area.
- Colden Great House (sixteenth century).
- Old Edge. Access to the interior of an early seventeenth century stone farmhouse with late seventeenth century porch of two storeys. Substantial timber-framed remains inside. Porch lintel is inscribed 'Peace be within thy gate'.
- John Williams will give a guided tour at 11.30am of Land Farm garden which is Bodnant-inspired, north-facing, and covers five acres. A thousand feet above sea level, yet sheltered. Himalayan poppies and garden sculptures. House of 1755, yet still clinging on to the seventeenth century in style, has earlier remains, and some imported from Schofield Hall, Lancashire. Ground floor visit, a rare chance to see an unusual parpoint wall, between housebody and parlour, which splays out to double thickness before first floor. The reasons for these walls are unknown, so come along and suggest one!

Soup and roll available for a small charge at the end of the visit to Land Farm Garden. Other food and drink may be purchased at May's, so no need to bring any unless you wish. If you'd like to come, please telephone Kevin Illingworth on 01422 844941, leaving your own telephone number.

Directions: From Hebden Bridge take the A646 road, west towards Todmorden. After quarter of a mile use turning circle to double back towards Heptonstall. Bypass the village, follow the upland road to Burnley for about two and a half miles (don't fork right to Colne). After passing long row of thirty-six cottages, immediately fork right along Edge Lane. Carry on past Highgate Farm shop, park on grass verge behind blue Land Rover at 10.15am, where a panorama of the Colden valley will be laid out specially for YVBSG members.

Yarm and Egglecliffe walkabout

Sunday 17 June 2007

A full-day visit led by Barry Harrison to look at brick buildings of an urban type in the ancient port of Yarm and of a rural type in nearby Egglecliffe. Meet at the Town Hall, in the centre of High Street, Yarm, at 10am. No need to book, just turn up. Please make your own arrangements for lunch – there are plenty of pubs and other eating places.

An Idle walkabout

Sunday 15 July 2007

All are invited to come and look at buildings from the seventeenth century onwards in Idle (morning) and Thackley (afternoon) led by Dr Eileen White of Idle and Thackley Historical Society.

Meet 11am in the chapel car park on Westfield Lane, Idle; grid reference SE175 379. To avoid morning service visitors, please use top end of car park by the bungalows or use street parking. All cars can be moved into the chapel car park later.

Idle, famous for its sandstone quarries, is on a hill top off the A657 Leeds Road between Shipley and Greengates. In Thackley, near a sharp road bend over the railway line, turn up Town Lane to Idle. There are also other routes. Nearest rail station is Shipley. Bring sandwiches or have a pub lunch. Be prepared for steep inclines and a breezy hill! No need to book. Enquiries: Alison Armstrong, telephone 01535 633592.

New YVBSG Archivist

We are delighted to announce that the Group now has a new Archivist. Malcolm Birdsall has volunteered to take on the role and has already started to get to grips with accessioning new reports into the archive and producing the many copies for distribution. From now onwards, please send all completed reports to Malcolm at 3 Springfield Mount, Addingham, West Yorkshire LS29 0JB, telephone 01943 830460, email malcolm@brhc.co.uk. YVBSG Events For Your Diary (continued)

Recording Day in the North York Moors

Saturday 11 August 2007

Here's an opportunity to record two interesting farmhouses/cottages in remote locations on the North York Moors. These are the unoccupied Harker Gates (SE 5271 9141) and the now-derelict Low Thwaites (SE 5434 9440), both near Hawnby, north of Helmsley, and both mentioned in the RCHME publication Houses of the North York Moors.

As a bonus, Arden Mill (SE 5212 9065), which is close to Harker Gates, will be opened to team members after recording is completed. The mill contains the only surviving intact workings of its type (circa 1730s).

Two teams are required, one for each property. Numbers are limited to four per team for the recording and visit. The plan is to record the buildings in the morning and early afternoon, followed by a hour-long visit to Arden Mill, starting at 3.30pm. Finish at about 4.30pm. Please contact David Cook if you are interested.

Next committee meeting

The next full committee meeting will be held on Sunday 11 November 2007, although a 'virtual' committee meeting conducted by email is currently underway to consider events for next year. If you'd like to suggest any events please contact David Crook.

Bricks, Tiles and Timber in Barton-on-Humber

Saturday 18 August 2007

Barton upon Humber lies on the south bank of the River Humber at the southern end of the Humber Bridge. Bricks and tiles have been produced along the river bank at Barton for many years but there are only two tileyards still working, both owned by William Blyth, a family business founded in 1840. A range of pantiles, plain tiles and ridge tiles are still made here using traditional techniques. We will be given a tour of the Hoe Hill works which should last for about an hour, starting at 10.30am. Come and find out how pantiles acquire their characteristic wiggle!

You will need to make your own arrangements for lunch – bring sandwiches or there is a choice of pubs and cafes in the town. You might also have time to visit the two churches, St Mary's and St Peter's. St Peter's Church has re-opened this year following major restoration work and features a remarkably complete Anglo-Saxon tower and baptistry, and a large medieval nave and chancel displaying a range of architectural styles. Open 10am-5pm, entry £4 (English Heritage).

After lunch Richard Clarke will lead a walk around the historic town. During the walk we will see 51 Fleetgate which includes a complete late Medieval box frame and crown post roof as well as later nineteenth century internal features.

If you'd like to come, please book using the enclosed slip or, if you prefer, email your name and address to Lorraine Moor (lsm1@york.ac.uk) by Friday 20 July. Full directions will be sent before the visit to those who have booked.

Note that the toll charge to cross the Humber Bridge is £2.70 each way (but parking in Barton is free!).

Annual Recording Conference 2008

Friday 16 to Sunday 18 May 2008

We plan to hold next year's recording weekend in the Thorpe/Burnsall area of Wharfedale.

Lt Col John Wright MBE, 1920-2006

Although described as a Man of Kent, John was known amongst his friends in the Upper Wharfedale Field Society as a man who had taken the Yorkshire Dales to heart. His wife, Miriam, was a Swaledale girl. After retirement from the army, the Wrights settled in Grassington, and it was here that John developed his deep interest in vernacular buildings. He became a member of the North Yorkshire and Cleveland Vernacular Buildings Study Group (forerunner of the YVBSG), in 1993 he was President of the Upper Wharfedale Field Society, and he was for many years the recorder and leader of that Society's Vernacular Building Study Group. During this time, at least four reports of properties in Upper Wharfedale, and a few in Malhamdale, were submitted annually to the YVBSG. John was not only a skilled draughtsman, but also an astute observer of many features associated with the history of the buildings being surveyed. This led him to publish his work under the title Grassington and the Great Rebuilding, which is an account of how historical events of national and local significance influenced the development of this village over a period spanning many centuries. He was also influential in organising a team of volunteers to restore a seventeenth century building known as Church House, in Grassington, where, behind a modern wall, a stone arched fireplace with its associated bread oven was revealed. He is greatly missed for his expertise, his leadership qualities, and his warm friendship.

Ryedale Village Building Studies

As mentioned in the last Newsheet, the Ryedale Vernacular Building Materials Research Group has decided that it should broaden its activities beyond geological study to include both other building materials and how they have been used in Ryedale, and compile information on what is vernacular and distinctive about the area. With this in mind, they have scheduled a couple of 'village survey' days to coincide with church study days in Brandsby and Hovingham, in order that members can split into smaller groups and look at what is of interest to them.

The idea of the village surveys is simply to map the building types, details and materials in individual settlements in order to compile a database of information. In the longer term, the group wishes to investigate ways of making this easily available to residents, planners and architects with the purpose of increasing people's understanding of their area so that distinctiveness is maintained.

The Brandsby village survey will take place on Saturday 7 July 2007 and the Hovingham village survey on Wednesday 3 October 2007. For details please contact the co-ordinator: Edward Freedman, RVBMRG, c/o North York Moors National Park Authority, The Old Vicarage, Bondgate, Helmsley YO62 5BP, telephone 01439 770657, or see website www.ryedale-buildings.org.uk.

Fire destroys thatch

Members who visited 'The Old Thatch' in Long Marston in 1998 to watch York thatcher William Tegetmeier rethatching the building will be sorry to hear that the roof was destroyed by fire on 4 May this year. North Yorkshire Fire and Rescue Service said that the blaze had caused severe fire and smoke damage to the interior of the property. Firefighters had to remove the thatch from the roof to put out the blaze.

John Letts, historic thatch consultant, commented that the ancient bottom layers of thatch on this roof were likely to contain valuable evidence of the cereal crops grown in this area in the medieval period, and he hoped to obtain a sample for analysis.

Websites worth watching

To follow up the Slaidburn weekend, here are a couple of sites which might be of interest:

Slaidburn Village

www.slaidburn.org.uk

Has a section on 'Slaidburn Past' – if you then click on 'Architecture' you'll see some old photographs of the village, including one showing a nice leaded light window at the rear of the Hark to Bounty Inn. The 'Genealogy' section contains Hearth Tax extracts.

Brennands Endowed Primary School

www.brennands.lancsngfl.ac.uk

Website of the school founded in Slaidburn in 1717. Follow the 'Renovations 2003/2004' link for numerous photographs showing the restoration of the building. In particular, page 4 shows the roof timbers and carpenters' marks.

Understanding joints ...

A member has suggested that the Group should acquire some portable examples of timber joints, for teaching purposes and to attract attention at exhibitions and bookfairs. People could pick up and examine these samples to help their understanding of how timbers fit together.

If any member with carpentry skills is willing to consider making some simple joints, please contact David Cook.

Thank you!

Many thanks go to Kevin Illingworth for putting together an excellent weekend of good food, interesting lectures and fascinating buildings to visit and record around Slaidburn.

We often neglect to thank our Chair, David Cook, for all his hard work in organising events and in generally maintaining the good work and reputation of the Group, so we're taking the opportunity to do so now. In particular, we congratulate him on another successful day school in March and, together with Kevin, on an enjoyable recording conference.

Next Newsheet

Many thanks indeed to everybody who contributed to this newsheet. The next edition will be in August – please send any items of interest to other members (events, books or journals, courses, news of particular buildings) to the editor by 31 July 2007.

Dendrochronology Project

The Group's project to instigate and promote the dendrochronological dating of buildings in Yorkshire is gradually making progress. As reported in the last Newsheet, three cruck-framed buildings in North and East Yorkshire have been identified as possible candidates for dendro-dating, and the Sheffield University dendrochronologists will shortly be visiting these buildings to assess their respective suitability for the process.

Getting into a habit?

A new holiday cottage has recently been opened by English Heritage – Prior's Lodge, at Mount Grace Priory, near Osmotherley. The stone cottage stands against the site's original manor house and enjoys views of the medieval fish pond, the church and the cloisters. Guests staying there can enjoy the tranquillity of the priory grounds after the day visitors have left. Prior's Lodge sleeps four with prices starting at £305 for a three-night weekend break.

The other English Heritage holiday cottage in Yorkshire is Abbey Cottage, Rievaulx. Built in the early twentieth century for the custodian of the Abbey, but using reclaimed abbey stone, this cottage is a reminder of the original medieval masons who built the Abbey. Their marks can still be seen on many of the blocks used in its construction. Again, the cottage sleeps four.

Enquiries: 0870 333 1187 during office hours or see the English Heritage website at www.english-heritage.org.uk.
